Johner represents municipalities, railroads and commercial clients in civil litigation and transactional counseling.

Johner is an experienced first chair trial attorney and concentrates his trial practice on civil rights defense, FELA, premises liability and commercial litigation in federal and state courts. He also engages in litigation in the areas of product liability, labor and employment law, contract disputes, business torts, land use and condemnation proceedings, personal injuries and issues related to local municipal governments.

In addition to his diverse litigation practice, Johner represents clients in business and real estate transactions of all types.

Before joining Daley Mohan Groble in 2009, Johner worked as an associate attorney at Albert Whitehead, P.C. in Chicago where he litigated, defended and prosecuted claims of commercial and local municipal government clients in trials in the United States District Courts and Circuit Courts of the State of Illinois. While a law student, Johner worked for the City of Chicago's Legal Department as a Prosecutor (under a Rule 711 license) enforcing Municipal Ordinances and the Motor Vehicle Code.
